1	I have found most of my instructors challenging and helpful. Usually the feedback is helpful and validates the effort I put in to the work. However, I do not like classes in which the norm is read the chapter and answer the questions. I would like there to be more "real world" application in an EdS program.	10/13/2020 4:23 PM
2	I thoroughly enjoyed my summer courses (EDL 648 and EDF 631). Also, Teacher Leadership for the 21st Century was a phenomenal course.	10/13/2020 3:37 PM

1	I think some of the courses are out of sequence. For example, in my next to last semester, I'm learning the ins and outs of APA and how to use the library. APA style has been a focus of instruction in both 629 and 691, but I've already had 6 courses in which this would have been helpful. I realize a lot of the instruction is part of the research class that comes later in the program; however, this instruction would have been tremendously helpful at the beginning of the program.	10/13/2020 4:23 PM
2	As the program has a rolling admittance schedule, I would assume that all courses are not offered every semester. This results in certain courses, with specific content, being offered late in the program. For example, I am in the fourth of five semesters, and I am taking two courses (ED 629 and EDL 691) this semester that have a great deal of APA instruction and basic writing skills instruction. As a matter of fact, I had an identical assignment in both courses, several weeks apart. The assignment was in the introductory module of ED 629, and was ungraded. The assignment was a part of the week 5 or week 6 module in EDL 691, and was graded. As a student, It was frustrating to do identical work in two different courses. Additionally, it seems that learning APA style and basic writing skills would be appropriate for the beginning of the program, before writing the papers of the first three semesters. Many thanks.	10/13/2020 3:37 PM
