

EXERCISE SCIENCE MASTER'S

Exercise Science Master's Program at the University of Montevallo is for those who desire advanced academic training in exercise science with a special emphasis on strength and conditioning. The Master's in Exercise Science has received Program Recognition by the National Strength and Conditioning Association.

Our highly qualified faculty, premier laboratory equipment, small class size and opportunities for applied practice offer students an exceptional graduate experience. Students will choose either a thesis or internship completion option.

Students who complete their degree are prepared for careers of distinction in the many fields of exercise science and strength and conditioning.
